JOANNA M. WESTON

That Birthday Night

I was born in a backwoods hospital on a day between Thursday and Friday

a nothing time that I caught in my teeth held to the hard parts of being female against a tide of violence and a rising smell of guns in the air until I wiped it clean with the dust of desert sand

and made fireworks from bed sheets to hang banner high on signal hills while my mother curled her body into the question of my existence

Joanna M. Weston has a middle-reader, Frame and The McGuire, published by Tradewind Books. Inanna Publications published her poetry collection, A Bedroom of Searchlights.

INANNA PUBLICATIONS

CELEBRATING 38 YEARS OF FEMINIST PUBLISHING

Committed to conserving a space for diverse feminist voices and to publishing book, particularly by fresh, new Canadian voices, that are intellectually rigorous, speak to women's hearts, and tell truths about the lives of a broad diversity of women.

because #FemLitCan change the world
